Hope in Bloom

COMMUNITY FOUNDATION of ORANGE and SULLIVAN

2021 ANNUAL REPORT
Following a year of unprecedented financial and emotional stress for individuals, businesses, and nonprofits alike, we at the Community Foundation of Orange and Sullivan felt it only fitting this year to celebrate hope.

Hope is defined as an optimistic state of mind based on an expectation of positive outcomes with respect to events and circumstances in one’s life or the world at large. One might question how we can be hopeful when there is so much suffering both locally and worldwide. We would answer that it is impossible not to be hopeful after the generosity we’ve witnessed over the past eighteen months as time and again, neighbors helped neighbors even when faced with hardship themselves. When you read about the drive to make a difference, resiliency of our funds and continued good work being done in our communities each day, we think you’ll agree that hope is indeed in bloom in Orange and Sullivan counties.

We are proud to be the umbrella organization administrating 363 component funds year-round that improve the quality of life of area residents. We are humbled by this important role, and committed now, more than ever, to fulfilling our mission to connect people who care with causes that matter.

Emily Dickinson wrote “Hope is the thing with feathers that perches in the soul and sings the tune without the words and never stops at all.” Let us not stop forging ahead with our critical and impactful work. Thanks to your unwavering support, we are creating a brighter future!

With hope and grateful hearts,

JoAnn and Gregg Atlas knew they wanted to do something good for people on the autism spectrum. They had spoken about how they would one day make a difference for this population. However, neither could have imagined the events that transpired on September 11, 2001, or how this horrific day would ultimately bring their charitable plans to fruition.

Lieutenant Gregg Atlas was a New York City firefighter who tragically lost his life on 9/11. After his passing, JoAnn knew the best way to honor her husband and his memory was to follow through on their longtime intentions. In that unexpected way, The Lieutenant Gregg Atlas Foundation was added to the Community Foundation’s family of funds.

Today, its mission to support, promote and nurture programs for adults with autism and their families lives on. These recreational, vocational and wellness activities bring joy and purpose into their participants’ lives.

“This is in response to the evil committed on September 11, 2001,” said JoAnn Atlas.

The foundation’s first project was to distribute autism awareness emergency packets to families and caregivers. The foundation has also helped support and organize autism trainings for first responders in Orange, Sullivan, and Rockland counties and New York City. It additionally advocated in Albany for legislation to support those on the autism spectrum.

Currently, the foundation is investigating the possibility of supporting a job opportunity program for adults on the autism spectrum in the Hudson Valley.

“We will continue to dedicate ourselves to bringing good into this world, particularly for those unable to speak for themselves,” Atlas said.
September 11, 2001 is a date forever etched in our consciousness. It’s a date that cut our country to its core; and for many here in Orange County, the pain was personal.

23-year-old Michelle Renee Bratton, a Pine Bush High School graduate, was working at Cantor Fitzgerald in Tower 1 that fateful morning. She was among 43 Orange County residents who died on 9/11. When Michelle’s parents Bill and Mary Bratton look back, they say it was an “emotional time for the Bratton family.”

“People were overwhelming us with their unsolicited generosity. This was an experience that we had never been through before and we were quite lost in the woods,” said Bill Bratton who has served on the CFOS Board of Directors since 2003. “Thankfully, the Community Foundation, which was then in its infancy, helped us recognize how we could put this generosity back into helping the community, while keeping Michelle’s memory alive, through an easily established fund.”

The Michelle Renee Bratton Memorial Scholarship Fund established in 2002 awards a scholarship each year to a young woman graduating from Pine Bush High School who is a member of the National Honor Society and on the girls’ swimming and diving team or a member of chorus. To date, the fund has awarded more than $50,000.

“On the surface, the fund isn’t going to fund finding a cure for cancer or anything significant like that,” said Bratton. “However, since 9/11, the MRB Memorial Scholarship Fund has financially assisted 20 students in meeting their educational aspirations. Imagine if one of these students goes on to do something really significant in making the world a better place for everyone?”

According to Bratton, the Community Foundation staff has been very supportive in enabling his family to expand and grow the fund to levels they never imagined. This year marks the 20-year anniversary of 9/11. With the passing of time, the Brattons are comforted to know Michelle’s annual scholarship will live on in perpetuity.

“This scholarship will be awarded decades down the road in Michelle’s name and for at least that moment someone will ask ‘Who was Michelle and why this scholarship?’, ” Bratton said.

“We trust that even if no Bratton family members are living, that this fund is in good hands with the Community Foundation, and that its goals will be met each year,” said Bratton.
It was a challenging year for high school seniors who had to be resilient in the face of the many impacts of COVID-19. However, their futures are extra bright thanks to the generosity of the donors who established scholarship funds within the Community Foundation of Orange and Sullivan.

In all, CFOS awarded $462,525 in scholarships this year, all made possible through generous donors who have established charitable funds within the Community Foundation.

When the pandemic struck, the Community Foundation established the Orange and Sullivan COVID-19 Response Fund. The fund quickly and efficiently distributed grants to local nonprofits on the frontlines helping the most vulnerable.

Providing food for the hungry quickly emerged as most critical. In Sullivan County, this task was especially challenging given the high poverty rates, lack of transportation, and rural landscape. Collaboration was key.

Fortunately, an already existing network of humanitarians existed in the form of service clubs that were poised and ready for action! With leadership from the Liberty NY Rotary Club, Rotary Club of Monticello NY, Operation Endeavor, and Garnet Health Medical Center - Catskills, Operation Feed was born.

Phase I of Operation Feed provided meals to hundreds of healthcare and other essential workers throughout Sullivan County, to say “thank you” for their heroic service to us all. The meals were purchased from area restaurants, thereby supporting the local economy. The effort was enormously successful because of incredible generosity from the public.

Operation Feed Phase II, a joint effort by the Liberty NY Rotary Club, Rotary Club of Monticello NY, Town of Fallsburg Lions Club and A Single Bite provided dinners to families with children in the Liberty, Monticello and Fallsburg areas who couldn’t provide for themselves.

Finally, Operation Feed 3.0, an initiative of the Liberty NY Rotary Club, launched when infection rates increased again, providing meals to staff members of Garnet Health Medical Center - Catskills and Sullivan County Public Health working extra shifts to cover COVID-19 immunization clinics.

Hope comes in the form of a meal.
CULTIVATING HOPE IN THE PANDEMIC OF MANY SEASONS

From the very beginning, Rich Rowley and Marianne Murray suspected this would be the “pandemic of many seasons.” Unfortunately, COVID-19 has indeed been with us for longer than many anticipated, and the impacts have been far-reaching and, in many cases, long-term.

When the world hit the pause button, the family held off on distributing grants from the Fund for Women and Children - that is, until they saw the deep impact the pandemic was having on area children and in particular, the disruption to their education and home lives.

“We became aware of working parents running out of options for childcare, proper technology so their children can learn, a healthy environment for learning, healthy meals, social interaction and connection,” said Marianne Murray. “It was time to step in and step up to support those agencies that pivoted to provide these critical services.”

The YMCA of Middletown was one such agency. The Y established remote learning centers to provide a safe and healthy space for parents to leave their children while they headed off to work. Thanks to a $50,000 donation from the Fund for Women and Children, the Y was able to provide financial assistance for families whose children attended their remote learning sessions and after school tutoring services for children who needed additional support.

“Between having students in small groups in the classrooms, YMCA staff engaging with students to assist with online learning, and tutoring services after school to reinforce one on one learning, parents testified that school grades actually improved compared to children learning at their homes,” said Ross Miceli, Chief Executive Officer of the YMCA Middletown. “Last but not least, the grant assured we had the PPE supplies to keep students and staff safe.”

“While this may seem like a definitively more radical strategy than our original mission expressed, our commitment to women and children remains stronger than ever and we believe this is the best way to utilize our resources during this unprecedented time.” said Murray. “We will continue to monitor this public health crisis and bridge the gaps with the Fund for Women and Children as they come to light.”

The Rowley Family Foundation is offering funding opportunities for 2022 in preparation for what’s anticipated to be another challenging year ahead.
Thank you to all who joined us for our inaugural Sullivan County cocktail mixer “A Celebration of Giving” at The Eldred Preserve. It was a pleasure to reunite with old friends and meet new ones. A great time was had by all, and the spirit of community action and charitable giving was palpable!
Beth and Gil Anderson have always given back to the community. They’ve worn many professional hats; first as public school teachers, then as entrepreneurs building Appalachian Mountain Dulcimers, followed by Gil’s 30-year career as a financial advisor. Most people know Gil from his time teaching golf at Locust Tree Golf Course and Winding Hills Golf Course.

“Gil had a professor that said when you make your decisions in life, find a need and fill it,” said Beth. “We’ve taken that advice to heart. Help wherever you can but begin where your roots are deepest.”

The couple joined the Greenleaf Legacy Society made up of charitable individuals who designate a planned gift to the Community Foundation because they wanted to keep helping the community after they’re gone.

“We want to leave footprints behind hoping they won’t get washed away should the waves rush in,” said Beth. “Good intentions are wonderful, however the only way those charitable desires become reality is through careful estate planning.”

The Andersons met with their estate planning attorney to formalize their wishes and create a legal document.

“Our estate attorney, Richard Shapiro, likes to say that upon your death, as you look down from your cloud, you want to see everything playing out the way you envisioned it,” Beth added. “People change, families evolve, but estate plans remain permanent.”

The Andersons chose to make a legacy gift to the Community Foundation’s Make a Difference Fund, an unrestricted fund at CFOS that meets emerging community needs in perpetuity.

“We wanted to help Orange County since we’ve lived here for 30 years, but I also wanted to give to Sullivan County since I grew up there,” explained Beth. “It seems like this fund finds a need and fills it.”

Part of the advice that Gil used to give to his clients as they were approaching retirement was to try not to disempower their children. The Andersons are not recommending against including children in estate planning, but rather encouraging others to think about community needs as well.

“As needs from your community have surfaced, you’ve found a way to help. Don’t let that stop upon your death,” Beth concluded. “Why disempower your kids at the expense of your community’s needs when you can help both? That will be very satisfying to see as you’re looking down from your cloud.”
This year’s 6th annual Hudson Valley Gives had its most successful campaign yet. The fully online fundraiser to support local nonprofits hosted by the Community Foundation raised a total of $664,003 for 182 organizations from 4,175 donors. Most donations were made over a 24-hour period on Wednesday, May 19 to support organizations throughout the Hudson Valley.

The event’s giving marked nearly a 20% increase in donations over the previous year to support charities in seven counties providing life-enriching programs and critical services that Hudson Valley residents appreciate and depend upon. When combined with giving totals from years past, charitable giving through Hudson Valley Gives now stands at more than $2 million.

For the second year running, SUNY Orange Foundation raised the most of all the participating nonprofits, a total of $37,165 from its generous online donor base.
